What Shall the Harvest Be ?

This is the peculiarly suggestive title of one of the popular Moody and Sankey Hymns. These hymns are sensational, emotional and popular. The title of the one we are now thinking of is suggestive to Hawaii nei at the present juncture. We are planting in every direction. New agricultural and industrial enterprises are springing up in all parts of the country. We are decidedly planting,-and "What shall the harvest be. Sugar, of course, but what else? As we have in previous issues for a year past, we still continue, in the discharge of our bounden duty, to warn the people of these Islands against the further admission here of Chinese-or any other-males without women. If we continue recklessly to add to our heathen male population, what shall the baryest be? Look to it in time!

THE situation in Europe is again critical, and causes grave apprehension in the minds of the leading statesmen of that Continent, and the Cabinets represented at the Congress of Berlin. It is clear that Russia is inclined not to be bound by the conclusions arrived at and embodied in the Treaty to which she then and there consented, but, awaiting a favorable opportunity, may cast it aside and fall back upon the terms of her own agreement with Turkey, known as the San Stefano Treaty. This intention is evidenced by her retention of a fortress near Constantinople, as we learn by telegraphic news received per Zealandia. The conclusion to be arrived at by us, at this long distance from the seat of events, will fortunately have no effect upon the resultbut yet we are privileged to express it, to wit: the Treaty of Berlin, on account of which Disraeli and England got so much newspaper credit, will, at the end of six months, be "a thing of shreds and tatters," not worth the paper upon which it was inscribed and so formally signatured by Bismarck, Gortschakoff, Beaconsfield, &c. They all knew it was not permanent; but the thought with each was-let us stop the row at present between our neighbors, in order to have time for our own domestic concerns-which in some cases are getting entangled. Thrones are threatened in Europe. The German Chancellor recently gave the world to understand that socialism was the only serious element of discord, but it is not very long since his policy was just as clearly antagonistic to ultramontanism. It seems probable, also, that the prompt repudiation by the social democrats of the scheme of "reform by assassination" and the increased strength of the national liberals and progressists in the next Reichstag will perpetuate and even strengthen socialism in Germany. Communism exhausted itself in France; but when the Geneva Convention met in 1871 it was announced that the International had become a European organization of even greater strength and with more clearly defined purposes. Recently, however, a writer in the Nineteenth Century, of acknowledged authority, brushes the International aside and declares that, individually, it is not a factor of importance in the secret society problem. Russia strives to crush out Nihilism, but raises a spectre far more intangible.

It is interesting at this date to recall the fact which may soon-as the world moves-become a matter of history, that over two years ago, in a speech' delivered at Aylesbury, the British Premier made used of the following words:

"I assure you gentlemen, that in the attempt to conduct the government of this world there are new elements which our predecessors had not to deal with. We have not to deal only with emperors and princes or ministers. There are the secret societies, an element which you must take into consideration, which at the last moment may baffle all your arrangements, which have agents everywhere, which have reckless agents, who countenance assassination, and who, if necessary, could produce a massacre." At the time these words were spoken they attracted no especial attention. The opposition at once covered the reference with ridicule, and asserted that the conservative leader referred to Russia secret agents, striving to divine a policy that was unknown to anybody. The margin of sympathy, under that interpretation, was clearly with the puzzled detectives. But now it seems evident that Lord Beaconsfield's meaning was different from that ascribed to him. Were these only empty words, did he exaggerate the danger, or had he grave facts to support his statement? Cardinal Manning refers to the new antagonism to existing European statecraft, after the manner of Hugo, as the 'Revolt.' His, in our our opinion, is the true idea. Names go for very little. What menaces the stability of every form of government, monarchical or democratic, is the consolidation for a common purpose of all social. This is Germany's—Europe's danger! Communism is repulsive to the upper classes; socialism, per se, attracts only the visionary and theoretical, therefore the more practical men of this order call themselves social democrats; ultramontanism appeals equally in vain to the free thinkers and to the Protestants; internationalism attracts only the proletariat. Union cannot be secured under the banner of any one of these organizations. Danger to the German Empire can come only when a common cause shall induce the sacrifice of personal sentiment and cement into brotherhood what is now discord. The cry of Vive la Commune." was tried in France and Tallow Barrels, Fire Bricks, Coals, Gambia, Barrels Cement failed. May it not be possible that in Germany the necessary inspiration will be found in that wondrous word, so full of charm and promise, H. HACKFELD & CO.

Australian International Exhibition.

We referred, in our issue of the 19th ult., to the Melbourne Exposition for the year 1880. Through the courtesy of the Minister of Foreign Affairs, we have received a printed pamphlet of some fifty pages, a "general programme" of the Australian International Exhibition, to be held at Sydney, New South Wales, in August, 1879. The following official letter will further explain To His Excellency the Minister of Foreign Affairs, Honolulu .

HAWAIIAN CONSULATE, SYDNEY, N. S.W. 7 Остовек 9тн, 1878. SIR: I do myself the honor of directing your attention to the International Exhibition, to be held in this city, in the month of August of next year. His Excellency the Governor of New South Wales has notified the British Colonial Secretary, with a view of communicating through H. M. Consuls to foreign countries, particulars of the forthcoming It is confidently expected that a large quantity of exhibits will be received by the Commissioners from all parts of the world. For your information I will forward to you by the out-going mail, the general programme, regulations, conditions, &c., &c. I will be pleased to see the Hawaiian Kingdom represented in the first International Exhibition neld in the Australian Colonies, and will gladly place my services at your disposal. Articles the produce of your Islands would be viewed with great interest-sugar, rice, coffee, salt, rum, pulu, wool, oil, &c., &c., and photographs of scenery, &c.

It will be necessary to secure space at least one month before the opening, and I will be glad to receive instructions on this head as early as possible. I have the honor to be sir. Your obedient servant, A. S. WEBSTER,
